Tip 1 - Grass Quality

Overseeding Your Lawn

Is your lawn looking thin and weak? Overseeding can bring back the thick, lush, green lawn you've been dreaming of. By spreading grass seed on top of your existing lawn, you can thicken up the scrawny areas and enjoy a terrific looking lawn with less weeds.

1. Pick ideal time. (First choice is Fall - second best is spring)
2. Mow it Low. (Cut grass shorter and keep the clippings. Rake lawn)
3. Choose Seed. (Based on your lawn type & geographic location)
4. Improve Soil. (Rake in a 1/4 inch OR LESS of lawn soil)
5. Spread Seed. (Rent or buy a spreader to help or hire professional)
6. Feed & Water. (Fertilize & then water lightly once or twice daily)

Tip #2 - Lawn Aeration

Aerate Your Lawn

Does your lawn feel spongy or dry out quickly? Over time, thatch forms on top of your grass and chokes it out. Aeration involves putting small holes in your lawn to allow air, water, and nutrients to get to the grass roots. We recommend taking some pictures and talking to your local garden centre. They'll help you figure out whether you should buy a unit, rent a unit, or hire a professional.

If you're a do it yourself kinda person, feel free to search online or check out some of the resource links on this page. Some people swear by the dethatcher we have linked below.

Tip #3 - Feed Your Lawn

Fertilizer For The Win!

Feeding your lawn is quite simple,
A normal sized lawn only takes around 20 minutes. Never use your hands to spread fertilizer, you should either rent or buy a spreader if you don't have one. A rotary spreader with a side-shield feature is best for larger lawns. (The side-shield feature helps keep the fertilizer on the lawn and off the stuff you don't want to fertilize, sidewalk, driveway, etc.) Drop spreaders are good for small areas. Applying the fertilizer is as easy as mowing, first, go around the perimeter, then go back and forth across your lawn until finished! The best time to fertilize your lawn is mid to late April.

Tip #4 - Kill The Weeds

No Weeds Allowed

Mess those weeds up before they mess your lawn up.

It is unwise to apply lawn weed killer to the entire lawn in the early spring as there is many weeds that won't arrive until later on. In early spring it's better to just hand weed. If you have a large amount of weeds in your yard, maybe start in May. If you need to do the treatment over again, you will still have lots of time before colder weather makes it ineffective. A well fertilized lawn will help your weed killer a lot. The best time to spray your yard is spring, autumn comes second.

The water jets are out of focus, creating a soft, misty effect. In the background, a white fence and some trees are also blurred. The overall scene is bright and sunny, suggesting a warm day.

Tip #5 - Water Your Lawn

Water Your Lawn

Water is one of the most essential things for a healthy lawn, however you need to be careful that you do it properly, for example, you shouldn't water at night because your lawn could become liable to diseases and if you water it too lightly, it will not reach the grass roots. The best times to water your lawn are before 10am and in between 4pm and 6pm. When watering your lawn, it's usually recommended to water until the top 6-8 inches of soil is wet. Make sure that you don't overwater your lawn. Many lawns need only around 1 inch of water every week.
