Step 1

Decide weather Traditional, Cash-Discounting, Or Surcharge is Right

While both cash discount and surcharge programs can offset credit card processing fees, there are some key differences between the two. One major difference between cash discounting versus surcharging is the way these two options are presented to customers. A surcharge is an additional fee that a customer pays on top of the listed price, while a cash discount is a reduction in the listed price for customers who pay with cash or debit.
